

JAMAKON aids a wife rescue her husband

Complaint No: 152/15

A man was arrested by the RAB forces in Bogra district when he went to a mobile phone company's customer care. Many people saw him being arrested by RAB. After getting news, his wife Rima (pseudo name) went to RAB camp but the RAB forces rejected the accusation that they arrested her husband. She requested them to let her meet with her husband. But RAB did not allow her. Nine days left, but RAB did not produce him before the court. In this trouble situation, she went to police station. But police did not take her complaint and she could not file any case. Her tension knew no bounds and she was passing her days with uncertainty. She feared that RAB would have killed her husband.

When Rima lost her hope to find her husband, she lodged complaint in the National Human Rights Commission (JAMAKON), Bangladesh. JAMAKON took her complaint with strong conviction and issued notice to the Senior Secretary of Ministry of Home Affairs to send report on this case. After some months, Rima found her husband. She expressed her gratitude for JAMAKON's efforts.
